Defined Contribution Retirement Plan

Your Future in Focus

Do You Think Investing for Retirement Has to Be Risky?

“Market volatility” refers to the tendency for the investment markets to fluctuate unpredictably—and it’s a normal risk of investing. When it comes to investing for retirement, many investors sell when the stock market fluctuates. But that shouldn’t always be the case. If the ups and downs of stock prices have you biting your nails, you may want to consider looking at investing for retirement differently. Because changing course could mean you might miss out when the market rebounds.

Behavioral scientists say people fear losses more than they anticipate gains—and then they act accordingly (and irrationally). Before you act, consider what’s driving your decision—facts or fear?

Remember: You’re in it for the long term

Timing is everything, but successful market timing is nearly impossible—even for professional investors. If you sell when prices are down, you “lock in” losses—and lose the chance to gain when prices come back. “Herd” investing (i.e., “following the crowd”) can drive you over a cliff. If you follow the pack wherever it’s headed, you may end up behind. By the time you hear about today’s market performance on Wall Street, it’s yesterday’s news.

Are you looking for a smoother journey?

A well-diversified portfolio may help balance out the potential ups and downs of the markets. One way to achieve this is through asset allocation—spreading your money across different investment types. Asset allocation won’t guarantee a profit or protect against loss, but it can help smooth your road to a more secure retirement.

Fortunately, as a participant in the New Jersey Defined Contribution Retirement Plan (NJDCRP), you have access to a wide array of investment options, as you can see from the chart on the right.

The NJDCRP offers a full range of investment alternatives across the risk-return spectrum. Within stocks, the Plan’s investment options are offered across the geographic, market capitalization, economic (developed versus emerging markets) and growth-value spectrum. A socially responsible equity option is available, as well. The NJDCRP also offers both core and opportunistic fixed-income options, a balanced (bonds and stocks) option, a real return (inflation-protection) strategy option, and a stable value option.

This is a simplified illustration of the relationship between investment risk and potential rate of return. There is no assurance that higher risk investments will provide greater returns over time. Past performance is not indicative of future performance.

The following funds are registered mutual funds: Calvert Equity I Fund, Oppenheimer Developing Markets Y, and PIMCO All Assets Instl.

Keep in mind, though, that every investment has some degree of risk—and potential reward. If an investment offers little risk of losing money, it may also offer less of a chance for higher returns. An investment with greater risk may offer a higher chance for returns, but there is no guarantee that a higher-risk investment will provide greater returns.
